

Industry Veteran to Lead Sales Efforts for Next Level Security Systems
Industry veteran bring extensive industry experience to newly formed company

Las Vegas – March 24, 2010 – Next Level Security Systems, (www.nlss.com), a manufacturer of a new breed of unified, networked security solutions, has appointed industry veteran Rob Tucker as Vice President of Sales.

“We are pleased to announce Rob’s appointment to our experienced and innovative team,” said Peter Jankowski, Chairman and CEO, Next Level Security Systems. “His experience in various segments of the security industry and especially in the finance and banking market will help propel the adoption of Next Level’s unified and cost-effective solutions. He builds strong and long-lasting relationships with his customers.”

Tucker comes to Next Level with more than 10 years experience in bringing new technology to the forefront of the physical security world. His extensive experience ranges from playing a vital role in the introduction of the first ATM DVR to spearheading extensive sales efforts for a global security conglomerate.

Prior to joining Next Level, Tucker was part of the start-up team of Lanex, which introduced the first embedded DVR for the financial marketplace in 1996. As Vice President of Lanex, he was instrumental in leading the company after it was acquired by Verint Video Systems. Tucker assumed the role of Vice President of Sales at Verint when the company went public in 2002 and continued to lead sales efforts, eventually growing Verint into a leading provider of video management systems.

Next Level’s robust product line will be on display at booth #6092 at the 2010 ISC West Conference and Exhibition, held March 24-26 at the Sands Convention Center in Las Vegas.
